The School of Social Work at San Diego State University has one tenure-track position available for Fall 2013. The School offers both BA and MSW degree programs, as well as a BA and MA in Gerontology. The undergraduate program prepares students for entry level social work practice. The graduate program provides advanced concentrations in Direct Practice, Administration and Community Development. The School, in conjunction with the Division of Global Public Health, University of California, San Diego (UCSD) will be offering a Joint Ph.D. in Applied Social Sciences with an Emphasis on Substance Abuse with first group of students anticipated to start in Fall 2014. The School is extensively involved in local, state, and national human service issues through individual faculty research and community intervention programs. In addition, the School has made a major commitment in the area of alcohol and other drug research. Visit our website at http://socialwork.sdsu.edu

Associate Professor/Professor Position: Expertise is sought in alcohol and other drug research with specializations in etiology, prevention, epidemiology, cost-effectiveness, and/or treatment efficacy. An optimal candidate would have expertise in graduate level teaching, a solid history of extramural funding and publications in the AOD field, and experience providing leadership, support and program oversight for doctoral level programs. The position may include oversight of the PhD program, including developing/monitoring courses, advising students, coordinating program administration, assigning advisors to students, and program marketing. A Ph.D. in Social Work, Public Health, Psychology, Sociology, or other Social Science field is required. A commitment to working in a multi-cultural environment with students of a diverse background is desired.

Salary is commensurate with qualifications and experience. Application review will begin February 2013, and will continue until the search is completed.
